Ownership participation by CEO Dr. Tobias Moser & family in FISCHER Spindle Group

Three years ago Patrik Fischer was allowed to take over 100% of the shares from his father Roland Fischer into the third generation. Like his father, he successfully delegated the operational management of the company to people outside the FISCHER family. Together with the board of directors, he concentrate on the strategic direction of the Group.

In the sense of the long-term ownership strategy, CEO Dr. Tobias Moser and his wife Tabea Moser will take a 30% ownership off he company with immediate effect. It has already been agreed that the Moser family will acquire the majority of the global FISCHER Spindle Group in 2027. Dr. Tobias Moser has been working in various functions in the Group since 2008. For almost three years, the 42-year-old physicist has been CEO of the Group with great prudence and foresight. The trust built up over the years and the same understanding of values are the basis for this decision and our common future.

As an international technology Group, the strategic step is very important to cement the strategic orientation. With this participation and the long-term majority takeover, the Moser family is making an even stronger commitment to the FISCHER Spindle Group. Dr. Tobias Moser will become a member of the board of directors with immediate effect and will continue managing the Group's operations as delegate and CEO. Patrik Fischer will continue to devote his full attention to the strategic orientation of the company. In addition, he plans to hold a significant ownership of the Group in the long term, following the sale of the majority stake in 2027. FISCHER now becomes a two-family company. Externally, nothing will change except the certainty of the continuity for all employees, customers, suppliers and partners.
